PREFACE

ENGLISH ORIGINS

Although the intermediate forms of the name are well known there is some doubt about the earlier forms of the name. Mr. Rush Maxwell Blodget has sponsored the extensive search made in recent years. As agent for Mr. Blodget, the late Vincent B. Redstone searched the parish registers and the archives of Suffolk.

Mr. Blodget concludes that the original form was Eu, which in turn became Bel Eu, Bel Eu Gate, Blogate, Blowgate, Blowgatt, Blogatt and finally Bloggett in England.

Mr. Blodget says: "Eu is a Sanskrit root signifying at times, pleased surprise and at times, high praise. I found in a translation of an old History of the Chateau d'Eu that 'Eu' was the name given to a beautiful section of the Normandy coast when it was invaded by Rolfe, a Viking from Norway about 875. 'Bel' was a French appellation for a man of dignity and standing, but having no royal title. 'Gate' is a Scandinavian word for road or highway."

Robert, Count d'Eu, in 1066 came with William the Conqueror to England, with the title of Marshall. He was given large grants in the north of England. From his family have come various branches: de Belleu, Bellewe, Ballou, Bellows and others. By the contraction of Belleu to Ble and the addition of place names, such forms as Blonerton, Blosutton, Blofield, Blomont and Blogate have been derived.

In his letter to us, Mr. Blodget also says: "A good genealogist should have a road map of the area as it was during the period he is studying. Our people went from York south along the Danelaw, across Nottinghamshire and thence south across East Anglia to mid-Suffolk. The references to the de Bel Eu and the de Blogate families, during their migration southward, are fragmentary, but they do show that the movement was not over fifteen miles in a generation and that the lane of migration was not over ten or fifteen miles wide.

"Many wills, birth, death and marriage records were destroyed during religious upheavals. Therefore the record of father-son continuity of descent was interrupted for a period of several hundred years---but we can be sure that the Eu family with its prefixes and suffixes, migrating southward through a narrow territorial channel, has maintained its family-continuity."

As an example of the fragmentary data found by Mr. Redstone, we have abstracted from his report the record of a court case. An unknown de Blogate, born about 1170 died about 1210, left a widow Rose, who about 1248 sold land in Athelington to her son Hugh de Blogate born about 1200. Hugh sold it to his brother Richard.. Then Richard de Suddene brought suit against Richard,** claiming that Rose had had only dower rights and could not dispose of the property. This litigation lasted three generations. In 1272, Matilda and Philip, children of Hugh, were involved, as was also, in 1323, Richard son of Philip.

COAT OF ARMS

American Blodgetts are not entitled to a coat of arms because of their Blodgett ancestry. Their last four generations of English ancestors are known to have been glove makers, inn keepers and farmers.

The arms of the early Bel Hu family were a gold fret on a black shield(sable fretty or); the crest, an arm embowed habited, the hand ppr. grasping a chalice pouring water into a basin, also ppr.; the motto, Tout d'en haut.

Following 1487 a number of records point to the rapid improvement of a John Blowgate of Ipswich, who left a son and a grandson John. A descendant of this original John, Edmund, assumed about 1530 an entirely different coat of arms: three bugle horns Sa. with cords Or on a shield Ar. Edmund lived in Stowe Langtaft, county Suffolk. On the marriage of his daughter Elizabeth to James Noone, gentleman, of Eadwell Ashe, Norfolk, these arms were quartered with Noone's. In 1555, Yaxley of Thrandiston, Suffolk, quartered his arms with the Blodgett arms also. Note that the Bellow and Ballou families also use, correctly, the ancient Sable Fretty Or, being remote cousins.

THE ANCESTORS OF THOMAS BLOGETT, THE EMIGRANT

The Blogget-Blogate ancestors of Thomas, the emigrant, lived in the western part of County Suffolk, at Stowmarket and Haughley, villages about two miles apart and ten to twelve miles northwest of Ipswich. Thomas the emigrant was the great grandson of Thomas Blogate of Haughley, born about 1490, died in 1560.

** "Feet of Fines of Suffolk" and supplementary sources in the Suffolk Institute of Archaeology, examined by Mr. Redstone

His will, dated Nov. 1, 1558, proved June 5, 1560, provides that his body is to be buried in the churchyard of St. Mary at Hawley. He gives "to Robert my son, house and land where I now dwell, he to pay thereout legacies following:

To every one of my children outcep (Except ?) Andrewe and John my sons, £ 6 ls 4d, namely to Johan my daughter, Thomas my son and Margaret my daughter. Johan to be paid first, Rose next, Thomas next, Margaret last, as the ferme (rent) of said house and land may bare.

To John my son, my house and land in New Street Hawley, he to pay 5 £ 5 within a year after my decease in deeds of charity. If Robert my son depart, my sonne John to have house and to fulfill legacies and if John depart the world without heirs, then Thomas my son."

Executors were Robert Blowgare & Martyne Ruttman/ **

Witnesses were Wm. Smythe of Haughley, Thomas Borrone & John Stannard.

Robert, grandfather of the emigrant, died in 1602; in his will he left to his son Thomas all of his land and tenements in Haughley; to his wife Marie £ 30 to be paid within the porch or steeple of the church at Haughley; £ 30 to his son John; £ 15 each to his daughters Ann Beamond, Frances Blogate and Margaret; £ 10 to Margaret's daughter Ann when she shall become 21; £ 5 to his daughter Ellen Weith; 40 shillings to Elizabeth Blogate his god-daughter; (who was daughter of his brother Thomas) and 24 shillings to Giles Blogate, son of said brother Thomas. His son Thomas was executor and was directed to pay all debts and legacies out of the household stuff and moveable goods; should Thomas default, then son John and Robert's friend John Sharpe of Haughley should administer the will. ***

Robert Jr., father of the emigrant, moved from Haughley to Stowmarket. May 17, 1597, he married Sarah Stepper; in 1598 he married Mary Witlock. He died in 1625 at Stowmarket, an inn-keeper there, leaving no known will.

The black plague struck London, Suffolk and other areas with devastating regularity. The years 1593, 1599, 1603, and 1608 were all plague years. In 1625, so many died that it was known as the year of the Great Plague. In 1631 Thomas' uncle John died. In 1630 and in 1632 Thomas lost his sons John and Nathaniel. It is quite possible that one of Thomas' reasons for emigrating was his hope of escaping this swift and merciless killer.

** Ipswich Probate Office; Arch. Sudbury. Book 1560. Paynter
-- Fol. 67

*** Ibid. Book Copping 1600-1605; F. 142. Will of Robert Blogate
-- dated July 5, 1602, proved Aug. 2, 1602.

The surname of Blogate is derived from the name of the place called Blogate, which is the Latin word for wife. There is no authority for Sarpen, given but later mentioned by the genealogist who has misled many people.

Religious differences, as well as the plague, agitated Stowmarket, as they did all England. Dr. Thomas Young became the Vicar in 1628. He was a man of strong Presbyterian leanings, best known as a tutor of John Milton, the Puritan poet. (We wonder whether the emigrant knew the famous Milton). Contrary to the policies of King Charles I and of Archbishop Laud, who sought to enforce strict conformity to high Anglicanism, Dr. Young brought to Stowmarket in 1634, lecturers who expounded Presbyterianism. There was at the same time an active Catholic party headed by the powerful Tyrell family, which helped to keep the people aroused. Possibly the sympathies of the Emigrant Thomas were with the non-conformists—he quickly was accepted in Cambridge as a member of the Rev. Thomas Shepard's church.

THOMAS' WILL

Cambridge in America
I, Thomas Bloggett, being at this time in my right mind, give to my wife Susan my whole estate, after my decease, as well within doors as without. She to bring up my children in such learning and other things as shall be meet for them and pay my eldest son Daniel £ 15 when he is 1 and 20, or in one month after her decease. To my second son Samuel £ 15 as above. To Susanna £ 15. Should they have a father at law (step father) who does not treat them well, my will is that the Deacons and our brother Winchship they, or either of them should have the power to see into it and reform it by one means or another.
Written this 10th day of 5th month, 1641 (Aug. 10, 1641)

Thomas Bloggett
In Presence of Thomas Harris
John Mens.

NOTE

The surname of Susan, wife of Thomas is not known. She has been called Uxor, which is the Latin word for wife. There is no authority for Sergan, given but later withdrawn by the genealogist who has misled many people.

VARIANT SPELLINGS

Found most frequently today is Blodgett; Blodget follows, in the ratio of about five to three. We have found no family which today omits the "d".

There are said to have been in American spellings twenty six variations. Among them are Bloget, Blogget, Blogett, Bloggett, Bolcet and Blockhed. Blockhed, found in colonial New Hampshire court records, seems to indicate that hts early pronunciation was that of a hard "g". These variations are due to the skill or the fancy of whomever had to write the name, rather than to a different ancestor. We have not found a Blodgett in America who is not descended from our Thomas the emigrant.

In the early colonial days, the single "t" was the more common form. After 1700, the double "tt" appears, more and more frequently; the "d" was used at about the time of the Revolution; by 1800 it was always used by the literate.

We have made no distinction. There are, today, several instances of brothers, or of fathers and sons, who vary the spelling by using one "t" or two.

The most interesting spelling of the name occurs in the History of Stowmarket, a book published in England in 1850. The book quotes a record made about 1580. The proper officials had made an official perambulation of a farm and had charged the owner of the farm for their refreshments. The man who paid the bill was Mr. Blodgett. This is the only use of a "d" found prior to 1760.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We are grateful to the many who have answered our letters. We regret that limitations of space prevent listing their names.

Mrs. Alice Smith Thompson obtained or verified hundreds of Vital Records of the States of Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Miss Pauline King, Assistant Librarian of the New England Historic and Genealogical Society of Boston, who made it possible for us to examine during many visits the Society's unpublished manuscript of the late Isaac Dimond Blodgett, which includes six generations, from the fifth to the tenth. Mr. Blodgett's notes included many letters from Mr. Edwin A. Blodgett, late of Springfield, Mass. These two men were the outstanding authorities during their generation.

Mr. Rush Maxwell Blodget, who in addition to extensive genealogical data, has a large collection of original letters, copies of documents and other papers relating to the family history, particularly to the line of Joseph # 86. Mr. John Allen Blodgett, known to genealogists by his pen name J.A.deL., formerly a Librarian at the Grosvenor Library of Buffalo and Secretary of a Blodgett Family Association in western New York State, has sent us the genealogies of the members of that Association, descendants of Silas # 243. Mr. Blodgett has also supplied data on many other New York State Blodgetts. Mr. Robert R. Buell of Wisconsin supplied census and land records of that state. Mrs. Victor Chugg of Utah sent the records of that locality. Mrs. Patrick J. Bolger and the late Mrs. Roscoe C. Turner contributed many details concerning their common ancestry.

Our thanks go again to John Allen Blodgett for his proof-reading and correction of the manuscript.

Although listed in the Bibliography, special mention should be made of the help afforded by Isaac D. Blodgett's Asahel Blodgett, His Ancestors and His Descendants. We also used extensively Mrs. Grace Limeburner's Seth Blodgett, His Ancestors and His Descendants.
