Embodying the plot of Irving's world-famed success, "The Lyons Mail," but transformed into an American drama of the wild western country of fifty years ago.

The city has technically gained jurisdiction in paving district No. 130, although quite a number of protests were registered, according to a report of the city recorder and the city engineer.

It is understood that bids will not be asked by the city on this district this year on account of the fact that the work could not be completed before snow flies and also because many of the property owners of the district have protested.

This district comprises the following street sections: Jefferson avenue between Twentieth and Twenty-fifth streets; Hudson avenue between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets; Grant avenue between Twenty-fifth and Thirtieth streets; Thirtieth street between Washington and Lincoln avenues; the south one-half of Twenty-sixth street between Lincoln and Pingree avenues; Thirtieth street between Pingree avenue and a point 1632.8 feet west of Wall avenue; Van Buren avenue between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets; Twenty-sixth street between Madison and Monroe avenues; the east one-half of Monroe avenue between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets; and the west one-half of Monroe avenue between Twenty-sixth and a point 331.7 feet north of Twenty-sixth street.

AMERICA'S GREAT ACTOR AT UTAH

In "The Midnight Stage" Frank Keenan has a vehicle for his splendid talent as a character actor even greater than "The Belles," which was so successfully presented at the Orpheum theatre, New York. As with "The Belles" on the spoken stage, the play from which "The Midnight Stage" was adapted from the screen, was responsible in a large measure in building the fame of the distinguished English actor, Sir Henry Irving. "The Lyons Mail" offered a contrast in characterization which would tax the ability of the best of actors.

Instead of adhering to the French story and the 1776 period in making the screen adaptation, Jack Cunningham transferred the locale to California in the sixties, and made it a truly American melodrama of the west. Mr. Keenan plays the dual role of John Lynch, an aristocratic southerner, who is seeking his fortune in a new country, and "Big" Rivers, a brutal drunkard road agent.

It is a story that grips the interest from the very beginning and sustains it until the end, which comes with an amazing climax. This extra selected star photoplay will be shown at the Utah theatre today and remainder of the week. It was directed by Ernest C. Wade, son of the famous tragedian Frederick Wade, who also directed "The Belles" and other Keenan successes.

CONGESTED STREETS CAUSE AN ORDER TO BE ISSUED

The congested condition of traffic on Hudson avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth streets, and the fact that parking of machines on both sides of the street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets has resulted in many accidents recently, were called to the attention of the city commissioners by a communication from James Douglas of the Boyle Furniture company.

The matter was recognized of such importance that it was referred to Commissioner Miles L. Jones, head of the department of public safety, who will order the traffic officers to keep the street free enough to permit necessary traffic with safety. Machines will be parked on the east side of the street the whole distance of the two blocks, and the using of the street for a repair shop will be prohibited, except for a short period of fifteen minutes in necessary cases.

The communication points out the fact that a number of repair shops located on the street are using the street for work rooms. Following is the letter from Mr. Douglas:

"To the Honorable Mayor and City Commissioners, City: 'Gentlemen: You will please pardon the liberty we take in thus addressing you. Our object in doing so is to draw your attention especially to the condition of traffic and the parking of automobiles on Hudson avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. In this particular block cars are parked on both sides of the street, and owing to the fact that there are many automobile sales rooms and repair shops in this block, it is most difficult for traffic to get through at times. Our firm is building a great many hundreds of loads of furniture, and we have great difficulty in passing through the street owing to the fact that repairing of automobiles is going on in the street and cars are parked on both sides of the street, thus leaving but a small passageway to get through with a loaded car, and making traffic hazardous and dangerous. The writer himself last Saturday saw three automobiles damaged, one of them very badly and the other two not so badly. The damaging of cars is expensive and sometimes dangerous to the operator and passengers. 'We ask, do you not think it would be a good thing to arrange for parking of cars on one side of the street only, and would it not be a good idea to insist on having repair work, where it takes any length of time, done on the inside of the repair shops instead of in the street? 'Accidents are occurring every day through reckless driving and while a person may be an expert driver himself he is apt to be run into at any time by an inexperienced, reckless driver. The writer is of the opinion that traffic should be regulated better than it is today and the writer is also of the opinion that it would be advantageous to traffic on Hudson avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets to insist on parking being done on one side of the street only, and all repair work done on the inside of the shop and not on the street. 'We trust you will give this matter serious consideration, as the writer believes it is for the interest of the public if the changes suggested herein be adopted. 'Yours very truly, 'BOYLE FURNITURE CO., 'James Douglas, Pres.'"

City of Ogden Has No Control Over the Alley

City Attorney W. H. Breder, Jr., made the following report to the commission this morning concerning the petition of I. H. Swanner regarding the title of the 16-foot alleyway in block 1, Stevens' subdivision, plat "C," Ogden City survey.

"I have taken the matter up with Mr. Swanner and advised him that in the official plat of the Stevens subdivision the said alleyway was dedicated to the use of the abutting property owners only, and that, therefore, the city has no right or interest in the alleyway to vacate or transfer to Mr. Swanner."

The question of jurisdiction was raised after Chairman Dallinger in opening the hearing had explained it was the committee's purpose to go into the case from the beginning and permit the introduction of evidence by the defense which was excluded at the trial in federal court in which Berger was convicted and given a 20-year sentence for violation of the espionage act.

Internal Revenue Agents Are Not On Commission

Reports have reached the bureau of internal revenue that some taxpayers are under the impression that revenue agents sent out to check up income tax returns are receiving commissions on amounts found to be due the government. The bureau of internal revenue today issued a statement declaring such impression to be erroneous and wholly without foundation. Revenue officers engaged in checking up returns, it was stated, are on a salary basis, and there is no incentive in aid to the correct amount of the tax due.
