FRANK ESSHOM

BORN July 4, 1865, at Lovilia, Monroe Co., Iowa, the son of Clay Esshom, born Oct. 29, 1844, in Park County, Ind., near Portland Mill, and Joanna Victorine Rilea, born Jan. 27, 1848, Mount Liberty, Knox Co., Ohio, they were married Feb. 10, 1864. Their children were: Frank (Ellwood), married Jessie Williams; Merton Wright, m. Josephine Ferris; Harlan, died, child; Gracie Caroline, m. Bertrand Pollock Castner; Orange; Cass Clay; Blanche, m. Scott Collins.

Frank Esshom married Jessie Williams Feb. 9, 1894; she was born Dec. 8, 1876, daughter of William H. Williams and Martha Ann Moore of Galesburg, Ill., and St. Joseph, Mo.

Clay Esshom was the son of William Esshom of Maysville, Ky., who was the son of William Esshom of Virginia, who was of Scotch and English ancestry, and Selinda (Chaney) Spurgeon, born at Snow Hill, Md., of English ancestry.

Joanna Victorine Rilea (the wife of Clay Esshom) was the daughter of Wesley Rilea and Caroline Wright; he was born July 4, 1824, Putman, Muskingum Co., Ohio (the son of William Rilea, who was the fifth generation of Rileas in America living at Culpepper Court House, Va., and Lucy Arnold).

Caroline Wright, the daughter of Charles Wright, of Frederickstown, Ohio, born at Princeton, N. J., who was the son of Ebenezer Wright, whose mother was a Stuart. Ebenezer Wright came from England as the King's surveyor to America. His wife, Joanna Johnson, was the daughter of John and Rebecca Johnson, who came from Holland.

Frank Esshom graduated from the high school at the age of eighteen, with preparation for a university course. His early life was spent on his father's farm, which was devoted largely to the breeding of high grade horses, cattle and swine, as well as the production of large quantities of grain and grasses, so that his early environment and education was on the line of producing. It was a family maxim of the Esshoms to make two blades of grass grow where one previously grew. In his nineteenth year, he accepted a position in the passenger department of the Burlington Railroad, where he became an expert ticketman at the end of two years, on account of his splendid knowledge of geography. The following four years were spent in travel. He visited more than two-thirds of the states, and nearly all of the principal cities in the United States, in the capacity of an expert special salesman. During this tour, he prepared special articles on social, commercial and industrial life, which were his introduction into the literary field.

At the age of twenty-five he began devoting his time entirely to newspaper work, as a newspaper reporter; an advertising solicitor; newspaper advertising and business manager; editor and manager of newspapers, and was a general publisher for twelve years at Denver, Colo., prior to coming to Salt Lake City.

Most of his life has been devoted to the production of literature, with the exception of a few years, when he was lured into the field of mining.

His father was a member of the 14th Indiana Vol., during the Civil War. His ancestors fought in all of the wars of the United States, beginning with the Revolution. They were also pioneers of Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Iowa. This spirit to fight and pioneer, inherited, which together with his life's labor, seemed to especially equip him for the undertaking he has carried on—a campaign of seven years in the field and at the desk—to prepare and present this volume, Pioneers and Prominent Men of Utah.

IN nineteen hundred and eight, after a year's labor gathering data for the Pioneers' history, the vastness of the undertaking dawned upon its promoters and depressed them to almost stupidness. They then realized that the work could be accomplished only by the most systematic and painstaking researeh, that they must have the sentiment of the whole people with them, that some great spirit must be in touch with them, that was thoroughly in accord with the people.

During this first year's work Francis Marion Lyman had been seen, he had subscribed to the work, promptly furnished his data and had done his part toward its production, and in words had encouraged us to press forward in our work.

The fire of love for parent and posterity and his people, flashed from his eyes when he saw there was an opportunity for their records to be made and preserved. In fact, he glowed with joy at the thought.

So, when the time came to select a man to head this undertaking, Francis Marion Lyman seemed to be the "Moses" to lead the "children out of Israel." When he was requested to take this leadership he faltered—he knew the great responsibility—but his broad manliness, which fears no burden in the cause of right, nor in behalf of his people, was thrown in the balance in our favor, he took the leadership—became the president. That we chose wisely the result speaks for itself.

President Lyman added strength to our zest, he inspired us to greater efforts, and others to our assistance, and with ever-gathering momentum we labored on until the work was done.

Through his assistance there has been built a monument to that "Noble Band of Heroes," as he expresses it, that will live on through centuries.

No man loves that "Noble Band" more, or could feel a greater responsibility for their descendants than does Francis Marion Lyman.

His associates in this work revere him for his wise counsel as their president, adore his great mentality, love him for his love of humanity as well as his personality.

They cherish for him the highest regard and extend to him their sincerest thanks for his never ceasing labor and great assistance in behalf of this publication.

JESSE KNIGHT

WHEN he was five years old, with his mother and her family of seven children, he arrived in Utah, a settlement three years old, one thousand miles from the nearest town. His father died a few days journey westward from the Missouri River.

The homes in Utah at that time were improvised shelters, there were no public and few private schools, and the needs of home were never satisfied. With these surroundings he grew to manhood and fatherhood. He tasted life from every angle that could fall to a boy and a man, under such surroundings.

He had not been an ardent Church member; while he was recognized as a Mormon, he had not been classed as a Latter-day Saint, he had not "had a testimony"; in other words, he had not been convinced as to the truth of the religion of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and the truth that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God.

In a dream, or vision, there was revealed to him that Utah was for the Mormons; that the doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was true; that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God; also, that if he went to a certain place (indelibly imprinted on his mind), that he would find a great vein of rich mineral, a mine. He followed the instructions given him in his dream, which took him to the now well-known Eureka mining district. There, away up on the mountain, he found the spot he had seen in his dream, and he uncovered the vein which led to a vast mineral body, which was opened up, only by much hard labor and many vicissitudes. Many times, for the lack of provisions, he would have to stop his work, but he never lost faith in his dream, and would return and continue his labor. At last the mine yielded the long sought precious mineral that made him a large fortune, which has multiplied and been added to.

Before his dream came true, and while he was laboring (as only one can who has faith) to take from "Mother Earth" her treasure, he met Wilford Woodruff, then president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, who prophesied that "he (Jesse Knight) would save the Church's credit." Not long afterward, the mine began to yield. The Church had outstanding notes upon which the interest was nearly due, the country was in a panic and money almost impossible to get. The first car of ore came from the mine and gave much greater value than was expected. When the miners and debts incidental to the production of ore had been paid, there was ten thousand dollars remaining, which amount, Mr. Knight gave to President Woodruff, who paid the interest on the Church's notes, and its credit was saved.

From thence on, he knew the truth of dreams, visions and prophecies, that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God and that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was the restoration of God's Church on the earth.

There are many pages in the history of Mr. Knight's life that forces one to believe that the hand of providence guides our way.

He has a Christian, upright family, is in possession of great wealth, and is honored by his fellowman. Thusly endowed, many a man is raised above the multitude. It causes him to forget the griefs and hardships that the less fortunate bear. Not so with Jesse Knight—he has not changed—he hears the cry of the needy, has sympathy for those in sorrow, his heart throbs with sentiment and love for human kind, which gives him a mannerism, a receptiveness and a simplicity that makes one know that the Spirit of Jesus Christ is reflected in man on earth.

He is a beloved father, an honored citizen, a kind, assisting friend, a public benefactor, a Christian.

PREFACE

THE author here presents the volume, Pioneers and Prominent Men of Utah. This work has engaged his entire attention uninterruptedly since September, 1907. As will be seen, it is the portraits, genealogies and biographies of Pioneers and their male descendants and Prominent Men of Utah and a brief chronological history of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Those men and women who came to Utah by wagon, hand cart or afoot, between July 24, 1847, the date of the arrival of the Brigham Young Company, and December 30, 1868, before the railroad, are designated as Pioneers.

To the author's mind they are all entitled to that distinction, because they came in the same general manner. Some had wagons, others with handcarts, and some afoot, but whatever was their mode of migration, they all came for the one and same purpose, that was: to build an empire and a church and homes of their own, where they could worship God according to the dictates of their conscience, and rear their families without the contamination of outside influence, and be free from the strife and turmoil they had passed through at Kirtland, Independence and Nauvoo.

The men coming to Utah after the railroad are designated as Prominent Men.

The portraits in this history are arranged, as nearly as possible, as follows: First, that of President Brigham Young, followed by his representative male descendants. These are followed by the portraits of men who came with him in the first company, July 24, 1847, with the exception of the first twelve pioneers' names, in alphabetical order, with their representative male descendants who are subscribers to this history. After the Brigham Young company are the portraits of men of the Mormon Battalion in alphabetical order, with their representative male descendants. These are followed by the portraits of men who came later in 1847, in the order that they came to Utah, namely: Daniel Spencer's 100, with Perrigrine Sessions and Ira Eldridge as captains of 50's, arriving September, 23d; Abraham O. Smoot's 100, with Geo. B. Wallace and Samuel Russell as captains of 50's, arriving late in September; Edward Hunter's 100, with Jacob Foutz and Joseph Horne as captains of 50's, arriving September 29th; Jedediah M. Grant's 100, with Willard Snow and Joseph B. Noble as captains of 50's, arriving October 2d; The "Artillery Company," captained by Charles C. Rich, arriving October 3d; Parley Pratt and John Taylor, two of the Apostles also came with companies, exercising general supervision—John Taylor arrived at Salt Lake City, with a company, October 5th; beside these pioneers are their representative male descendants who are subscribers to this history. Then follows the portraits of men who came in 1848, '49, '50, '51, etc., in consecutive yearly order up to and including 1868, when the last wagon train came all the way across the plains from the Missouri River to the Salt Lake Valley. Following these come the stake presidents and bishops, arranged alphabetically, then governors, and prominent men who came to Utah after 1868, arranged alphabetically.

This portrait arrangement will show each person followed by his representative male descendants in his respective place, according to the day and year of his arrival in Utah—as near as it was possible to arrange them—if he, or his descendants are subscribers to this history.

Following the portraits are the genealogies, arranged alphabetically, after which comes the history of the Church, chronologically arranged, from the birth of the Prophet Joseph Smith in 1805, to 1863, also the portraits of the Prophet Joseph Smith and Patriarch Hyrum Smith, the genealogies of their families and their lineal ancestry.

It was the intention of the author in the beginning of the preparation for this volume to publish the portrait of the Pioneer and his representative male descendant, and prominent men with four lines of reading matter underneath the portrait. After a year's labor, it was discovered that the genealogies of the Pioneers of Utah were so closely and intricately interwoven, that an accessible record was very much in need of by them, and it was decided to print the genealogies of these Pioneer families in connection with the portraits; this more than doubled the labor and expense of production. He now presents to the subscriber for this volume, nearly six thousand portraits and many more genealogies.

NOTE.—Utah (Yuta) at the time the pioneers settled in the Great Salt Lake Valley, comprised the territory now occupied by Utah, Idaho, Montana, Eastern Washington, Eastern Oregon, Nevada, Northern Arizona, Northern New Mexico, Western Colorado and Western Wyoming.

At the conclusion of this labor, the author is justly proud of the achievement, as in presenting it, he offers to the world a book unique and incomparable to any that has heretofore been issued. This is because a similar opportunity for such a volume has not heretofore been offered an author, as no other people but those of the faith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have ever gone forth into a wilderness in the mountains and created an empire, and there remained generation after generation and enjoyed the fruits of their labor. On account of their belief in plural marriage, they have left a posterity large enough, at a date sixty-five years subsequent to the first settlement, that nearly all the leading men of that early pioneering has a male descendant. Again, their posterity has been held within the confines of the empire they built, because they did not care to wander from their homes and religious ties. These conditions made the gathering of this data possible, as in no other place to our knowledge has the pioneer remained as the permanent settler.

The author is also proud of this volume because it will live as a memorial to those men whose deeds were rapidly being forgotten. The story of the leaders has been told repeatedly, but that of the rank and file, the ones who did the actual pioneering and building has not been told before. This will cause them to live on perpetually, and each succeeding generation will know their labors; their deeds will increase in miraculousness; their valor will be more greatly appreciated; their heroisms stand out unprecedented, showing the quality of the men who dared to turn their faces toward an unknown desert and to build homes, and an empire.

Having stated what the History contains and why it was possible for it to be produced, the query which arises in one's mind is: "How could such a gigantic undertaking be completed?" The author was fully inspired with the belief that he was producing what a great people wanted and needed, his absolute confidence in, and his knowledge of, these people, their great love for their ancestors and their posterity, and their church,ever impelled him onward to a successful conclusion of his self-assumed labor. After a year of gathering material and data in Salt Lake City, a year was spent in Weber and Utah Counties in the same quest. Then a thorough search was started, as a beginning to the end; the Bishop of every ward from Yellowstone National Park and Upper Oregon on the north and northwest to Vernal, Emery and St. George on the south and southeast in Utah, was visited. In almost every instance an application for a volume was given by the Bishop of the ward and he gratuitously furnished the author with the names of the Pioneers who had died in his ward, and the names of their representative male descendants, also the names of the Pioneers who were living in his ward and the names of their representative male descendants. Nearly a year was required in making these visits. After this organization was perfected, the author, assisted by a corps of solicitors visited each house in every ward in all of the stakes in the territory above mentioned, where a Pioneer or the descendant of a Pioneer lived as given him by the Bishop of the ward, or could be secured from inquiry, and gathered the portraits and genealogies as complete as it was possible to so do, and arranged for the information unobtainable at that time to be sent to him. The gathering of this data, which could be acquired in no other manner, probably required more than fifty thousand calls, the assistance of every photographer in the territory, the traveling of thousands of miles, which was made over every kind of roads in all kinds of weather, and by every mode of conveyance. He made one continuous trip by team in Southern Utah of 1,385 miles, without being in touch with a railroad. This was from October to the last of January. After this data had been gathered, it was necessary to re-write it in duplicate and submit a copy to the one who furnished the geneaolgy and biography, and the correspondence in connection with that and other phases of the publication required more than fifty thousand letters.

There are some of the old families who are not represented in this History. We are very proud to say that they are few. While the rule laid down for the production of this History was that every family who was represented in it must make a subscription to it to help defray the expenses of producing it, yet hundreds of photographs have been entered, and genealogies published of those Pioneer men who have left no male descendants to represent them. In fact, no one has been left out of it because they were unable financially to make a subscription. In every case where the Bishop advised us that the family was not able to make a subscription the Pioneer has been put in this history by us with as much care as though he were a subscriber.

The author is thankful to many for assistance rendered him. He is thankful to James G. McAllister, who rendered him the first assistance in the initiative of the work and continuously to its completion; to the Board of Directors of the Utah Pioneers Book Publishing Company, namely: Francis M. Lyman, James G. McAllister, Geo. T. Odell, C. B. Stewart, Governor William Spry, O. C. Beebe, W. Lester Mangum and Jesse Knight for their wisdom and guidance, and for the last named gentleman, words cannot express his gratitude and thankfulness for an aid and an assistance given him, when all other channels seemed closed, that furnished the finance necessary for the completion of this volume. The author sincerely believes that this aid was rendered him wholly because Mr. Knight believes this volume will live as a memorial to the Pioneer; as an aid to the living by giving their relationship one to another, and a blessing to those unborn by placing a record before them showing they descended from the founders of Utah, and the builders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, that he does not feel that his possessions are given him especially to have and to hold, but that he may do great good with them while they are entrusted to his keeping.

The author is thankful for assistance received from Ernest H. Rich, Oscar B. Madson, John Q. Critchlow, W. W. Browning. He is indebted to the Presidents of stakes and almost every Bishop under the dominion of the Church, for information given and kindnesses extended to him while in their wards. He is also indebted to, and thankful for, the assistance rendered by each subscriber to this volume, as only for their kindnesses, interest and painstaking assistance in compiling these genealogies and biographies could this data have been obtained, as more than fifty per cent. of it came from the memory of some one in or who was familiar with the family, and which information has never heretofore been indited or made accessible to those to whom it pertains.

The author has had for his constant companions in this labor during the last seven years, those people who are most frequently spoken of as the "Mormons." They among themselves have two definitions for the word "Mormon"—first, it is applied to all of the people who have embraced the religion, or have been born into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; second, the more religious ones who bear this name are known as "Latter-day Saints," and while the former part of the expression "Latter-day Saints" may be an assumed name, the word "Saints" they are wholly entitled to, because of the life they live. No one who knows these people, as it has been the author's good fortune to know them, can have but the highest regard for them as a people, he cannot help but believe in their sincerity in their religion, and he absolutely knows that they are trying to live a righteous life and that the teachings of Jesus Christ are constantly before them, as their example to live by.

That these Pioneers have established a state and a religion is sufficient commendation of their worth. Any man might spend even more years than the author has, in making their deeds and actions a matter of record, to live as an unparalleled example of pioneering and successful endeavor in church building.

November 3, 1913. FRANK ESSHOM.

GENEALOGIES AND BIOGRAPHIES

These genealogies are alphabetically arranged, and show, if the information was furnished, who was the oldest member of the family that came to Utah; his father's name and his mother's maiden name; when and where he was born; when he came to Utah; the company he came with; who he married, and when, and where; who the father and mother of the wife or wives were; where they lived, or when they came to Utah; whom the children of the "oldest member" of the family were, when they were born, and who they married—continuing this genealogy with the genealogies of his lineal male descendants (who are subscribers to this history), to any generation that may intervene between the "oldest member" of the family and this date—September, 1913.

BOLD FACED CAPITAL letters indicate the "oldest member" or head of the family.

CAPITAL LETTERS indicate sons, or lineal male descendants.

Where two or more brothers came to Utah, and their father and mother did not come, they will be found in the regular alphabetical order and not in family group.

The abbreviations—b. is for born, m. for married, and d. for died, where used in the family record.

The genealogy of the father of the wife will be found in the regular alphabetical order.

Within the parentheses (—) will be found the names of the parents of the person who precedes the parentheses.

In the summer of 1846 he started for Utah in company with William Crosby and Robert Crow company, who later came to Utah with Capt. James Brown's detachment of the Mormon Battalion, with whom the party wintered in Pueblo, where they had expected to join the main body of the pioneers coming to Utah. He and seven others returned to Mississippi upon learning that President Young had not yet left Winter Quarters, and that the exodus from Nauvoo was not yet complete. In April, 1847, he joined Brigham Young's pioneer company bound for Utah, and was the chief hunter of the caravan. He was among the first to assist in the plowing, planting and preliminary irrigating in Salt Lake valley. He was said to have swung the first scythe on the native grasses of Utah that produced the first hay for the famished, travel-worn animals. He was among the first explorers of the several points of the valley which afterward became the sources of water supply, or strategic defense against the Indians. He was foremost in the Indian fight at Battle Creek Canyon December, 1848, and captain of Parley P. Pratt's company that explored southern Utah in the winter of 1849. Early in 1850 he formed the patrol that protected the settlers night and day against the constant incursions of hostile Indians. Later that year he was sent east as traveling agent for the Perpetual Emigration Fund, and spent two years at the different gathering points of Utah-bound immigration, outfitting the different trains for their journey across the plains. In 1852 he was elected to the territorial legislature and commissioned aide-de-camp in the general staff of the Nauvoo Legion with rank of colonel; in 1853 he was again superintendent of immigration with headquarters at New Orleans, transferring over 2,000 European immigrants to river steamboats, and landing at Keokuk, Iowa, where he outfitted them for their trip to Utah. President 8th quorum seventies, Salt Lake City, and president of the mass quorum of Lehi. Was a member of the settlement exploring expedition to Salmon River, Oregon, 1857. Returning he was elected justice of peace at Lehi, and member of legislature again in 1859. Missionary to England 1860, and, returning, was immigration agent at Florence, fitting out 15 companies of Utah immigrants. In 1863 he was elected selectman of Utah county, and was mayor of Pleasant Grove for 10 years afterward. This county was represented again by him in the legislature in 1874-83. Bishop of Pleasant Grove for 29 years; presided over the southern states mission after the civil war for two years and returned again to Omaha as immigration agent. During this time he crossed the plains 15 times by team. Ordained patriarch 1893. Died Nov. 4, 1896, at Pleasant Grove.

CAINE, JOHN T. (son of Thomas Caine and Elinor Cubbon of the Isle of Man, Parish of Kirk Patrick). Born Jan. 8, 1829, on the Isle of Man. Came to Utah Sept. 20, 1852, captain of ten in the James McGaw company of fifty wagons.

Married Margaret Nightingale Oct. 22, 1850, St. Louis, Mo. (her grandmother, Mary Leach, was the second woman baptized into the L. D. S. church in Europe. She lived at Nauvoo, and later went to St. Louis).

The family record of Mr. and Mrs. Caine shows them to be the parents of thirteen children, eight of whom are living, namely, Agnes Ellen, who is Mrs. Arthur Pratt; John T., Jr., registrar in the Utah Agricultural College at Logan; Albion William, a rancher near Missoula, Mont.; Joseph Edgar, a former captain of the Utah Volunteer Cavalry in the Philippines, afterward cashier of the Utah Commercial and Savings Bank, secretary Salt Lake Commercial Club; and at this time secretary Oakland (Cal.) Commercial Club; Julia Dean, Mrs. George D. Alder; Charles Arthur, secretary of the Caine & Hooper Co.; Florence Nightingale, Mrs. Will G. Farrell; Margaret Nightingale, and Mrs. William G. Patrick.

He was a school teacher in Utah; missionary to Sandwich Islands; actor, stage manager and editor at Salt Lake City; territorial legislator; University regent and city recorder —such is a partial epitome of the pre-delegate record of this self-made man, rising step by step from the humblest walks of life to the high and honorable position of United States Congressman from Utah. As missionary to the Hawaiian mission, where he presided over the Oahu conference, the climate did not agree with him, and President Young recalled him. Reaching Utah October, 1856, he was made secretary of the legislature in session at Fillmore, which adjourned to Salt Lake City, and was with that body until its adjournment. He was secretary of a commission appointed by this legislature to codify the United States laws applicable to territories. He held the same positions in the legislatures for many years afterwards. He was also military secretary (with the rank of lieutenant-colonel) on the staff of Gen. Daniel Wells, commanding the Nauvoo Legion, and once a private clerk to President Brigham Young.

Delegated to carry a protest from the people of Utah to Washington, D. C., against the Cullom bill, then pending in Congress, he created much favorable comment. Manager of Salt Lake Herald, established 1872, and third owner; member constitutional convention of 1882; elected to congress that year, taking his seat March, 1883; presided over the constitutional conventional of 1887, and strongly urged the adoption of a clause in the proposed constitution prohibiting polygamy, believing this to be the true solution of the "Mormon" problem, and the only course that would satisfy the government of the United States.

He presented the constitution and its accompanying documents to Congress, and on Feb. 18, 1888, before the Senate committee on territories, made a strong argument in support of the honesty and sincerity of the people of Utah in proposing this solution of the vexing question. During the same year, on the 25th of August and the 4th of October, he delivered in the House his noted speeches, "Polygamy in Utah a Dead Issue," and "Mormon Facts Versus Anti-Mormon Fictions." In the beginning of 1889 he made an able and forcible argument before the House committee on territories in favor of Utah's admission as a State. All the while, in and out of Congress, he was stemming a perfect torrent of anti-Utah measures, one of which, by Senator Paddock of Nebraska, an ex-member of the Utah Commission, proposed the redistricting and reapportionment of Salt Lake City by the governor, secretary and members of that commission, in such a way as to give the "Liberals" control of the city government. Senator Cullom, of Illinois, and Delegate Dubois, of Idaho, presented legislative commission bills. Mr. Caine's plea to senators and members was that they should wait and see if the Edmunds-Tucker law would not accomplish all that was desired in the settlement of the "Mormon" question. He introduced a bill for an enabling act for Utah, and set on foot the movement that resulted in the appointment of a fourth federal judge for Utah. A pleasant episode in the midst of these stormy experiences was his attendance, as Utah's representative, in New York City, April 29, 30, and May 1, 1889, at the great celebration in honor of the centennial anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as president of the United States.

The opening of the Fifty-first Congress found him at his post, fighting the infamous measures known as the Cullom and Struble bills, which proposed to disfranchise all members of the L. D. S church who were American citizens, and prevent the naturalization of Mormon aliens. On April 23, 1890, Mr. Caine, before the House committee on territories, delivered a masterful and convincing argument against the Struble bill, which, though favorably reported, prevented it from coming before the House for action. Our delegate and his congressional friends also blocked the way of the new Edmunds bill, proposing to devote the funds escheated from the Mormon church to the public schools of Utah. Upon the passage of the bill for the admission of Idaho, he made a speech favoring statehood for that Territory; but opposing those provisions of the enabling act which disfranchised for their church membership, all Mormons citizens residing there.

But it was not alone in antagonizing measures inimical to his Mormon constituents, that our delegate's zeal and efficiency were shown. He fought repeatedly and successfully the proposed removal of the Southern Ute Indians from Colorado to Utah, and secured measures for the relief of the inhabitants of Ferron, Richfield, and Morgan, enabling them to increase the area of their townsite entries by filing upon school lands within their corporate limits. He obtained appropriations for the construction and completion of the Utah penitentiary, and for the benefit of the Shebit Indians in Washington county. He presented bills for the erection of government buildings at Salt Lake City and Ogden, for the creation of a land office at Ogden, and for the granting of a tract of sixty acres for a University site on the Fort Douglas military reservation. He also secured, during the anti-polygamy crusade, presidential clemency and full pardons for many old and feeble men who were undergoing imprisonment in the prisons of Utah and other places.

In these and all other matters requiring executive action Mr. Caine speaks in warm terms of the magnanimity and high sense of justice manifested by President Cleveland. With the president, the heads of departments, and the attaches of several government offices, he maintained the most cordial relations. Uniformly dignified and courteous, he enjoyed the confidence and respect of his associates in Congress, made no enemies, and had many warm friends. During the whole of his experience as delegate he served as a member of the National Democratic Campaign committee, representing Utah, and took an active part in all its deliberations for the advancement of Democratic interests in the several congressional districts. The influence thus gained was ever at the command of his constituents, and no citizen of Utah, nor even of Idaho or Arizona, Mormon or not, ever appealed to him in vain for assistance, when to give such assistance was proper and possible.

To recount the full story of his combats, victories and defeats in the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-second Congresses, to each of which he was elected by an overwhelming majority (his plurality at the last election being nearly ten thousand), would require much space. It might almost be said that a battle royal was waged from start to finish throughout his eleven years of service, the final victory coming to Mr. Caine and the people for whom he faithfully fought, in the practically unanimous consent of all parties to admit Utah into the Union. On Jan. 7, 1892, he introduced in the House the Utah Home Rule bill, duplicated by Mr. Faulkner in the Senate, and in February considered by the Senate and House committees on territories. Delegations from Utah, introduced by Mr. Caine, spoke for and against the measure: H. W. Smith, C. C. Richards, J. W. Judd, F. S. Richards, T. J. Anderson, J. L. Rawlins, F. H. Dyer, and ex-Governor West, in favor of it, and O. W. Powers, C. E. Allen, C. W. Bennett and John Henry Smith in opposition. The latter two argued in favor of statehood rather than against home rule. Before the Senate committee, Delegate Caine read the Mormon petition for amnesty, dated Dec. 19, 1891, and signed by the First Presidency and Twelve Apostles, thus securing its publication as a part of the proceedings. He worked zealously for the Home Rule bill, and on July 8, 1892, saw it pass the House, thus clearing the way for Statehood.

Upon the dissolution of the "People's" and "Liberal" parties, Mr. Caine, who had always been a Democrat in spirit, became identified with and one of the leaders of the Democratic party of Utah. In June, 1892, he attended as a delegate the National Democratic convention at Chicago which nominated Grover Cleveland for his second term as president. There was a contesting delegation, headed by Judge Powers, representing the "Tuscarora Society," mostly Democratic members of the fast dying "Liberal" party. Mr. Caine's acquaintance and influence with public men, members of the convention, was largely instrumental in seating the regular delegates—Judge Henry P. Henderson and himself. As a member of the committee on platform and resolutions, he secured a clause in the platform favoring statehood for all the Territories having the requisite qualifications. Back again in Congress, Jan. 14, 1893, he introduced in the House, a bill for an enabling act to admit Utah into the Union, and a similar bill at his request was introduced by Mr. Faulkner in the Senate. It failed of passage owing to the flood of business at the close of that session, and the change of administration, but practically identical with it was the bill that became a law in the next Congress.

With statehood in sight—the public boom for which he had toiled so long and faithfully—Delegate Caine was the logical candidate for re-election 1892, but it being suggested to him by personal friends among his fellow partisans, after the organization of the Democratic party of Utah, that in order to show the country that the dissolution of the "People's" party was an honest reality, it would be advisable to nominate a non-Mormon for delegate, he willingly sacrificed his own political interests, and heartily joined in the nomination and zealously worked for the election of Hon. Joseph L. Rawlins. The next year Utah went Republican, that party electing a majority of the members of the legislature. Fearing the effect upon Congress, which was strongly Democratic, and was then considering the Utah Statehood bill, which passed the House in December of that year, Mr. Caine was prevailed upon by prominent Utah Democrats, in January, 1894, to take a trip to Washington and consult with Democratic leaders in Congress over the Utah situation. The result was all that could be desired. While those leaders were disappointed at the outcome of the election, they declared that the Territory had all the qualifications for Statehood, and was entitled to admission into the Union. The enabling act passed the Senate in July, 1894, and on the 16th of that month was approved by President Cleveland.

As Chairman of the Democratic territorial committee, Mr. Caine, in the fall of the same year, waged an energetic campaign, many Democrats being elected to the constitutional convention, which, however, had a Republican majority; that party also elected the delegate to Congress, Hon. Frank J. Cannon. In August, 1895, Mr. Caine again went east in the interest of his party. At the Democratic convention for the nomination of State officers, held at Ogden, in anticipation of Statehood, on the 5th of September, he was almost unanimously nominated for Governor, but in the election, after a thorough canvass of the Territory with Hon. B. H. Roberts, he shared the fate of his party, receiving 18,519 votes as against 20,833 cast for the successful Republican candidate, Hon. Heber M. Wells. In 1896 he was nominated for the State Senate and elected, receiving a majority of 3,820 votes over any senatorial candidate on the opposition ticket. He served but one session in the Senate, having drawn the short, or one-year term.

In the interim of retiring from Congress in March, 1893, and the advent of statehood in 1896, Mr. Caine was Auditor of Public Accounts for the Territory. He was afterwards superintendent of waterworks for Salt Lake City. In business life he has also figured prominently. He was one of the original stockholders and directors of Zion's Savings Bank and Trust Company, and is a director, secretary and treasurer of the Josepa Agricultural and Stock Company, promoting the settlement of native Hawaiians on a large ranch in Skull Valley.
